Higher Education, especially cross cultural education, exists to help students and scholars learn, not only for themselves, but for all of us. They will understand how life today and tomorrow might be better, and, in these ominous years of nuclear gloom, how life itself is in fact to remain clinging to this planet. As they acquire an understanding of why and what the great powers are concerned about they will recognize that in this nuclear age competition and hostility must give way to cooperation if either of them are to survive. This is the new manner of thinking which is the purpose to which the exchange program is dedicated.
